Purchasing Power Higher In Crawford County

(Special to the Avalanche)

New York, Feb. 9 — Just how well off, relatively, is the average worker in Crawford County? For his weekly pay check how much can he buy?

prices, which have reduced the dollar less than half its one-time value, the sole measurement of his current income is the amount of goods and services he can purchase with it.

From this standpoint, he is comparatively well off today, according to studies by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the National Industrial Conference Board and others.

For, despite the declining dollar, he can buy more clothing, more food and more of the other necessities now than he could with his pay checks in former years. The reason is that his earnings have been rising fast enough to more than compensate for the loss caused by inflation.

Today, in Crawford County, the average worker can buy a pair of nylon stockings with 45 minutes of his labor, a pound of round steak with 46 minutes, a house dress with 157 minutes, a refrigerator with about 179 hours and a man's wool suit with approximately 41 hours.

These figures are based on current market prices and on average earnings locally.

The same purchases, if made five years ago, would have cost nearly one hour more each day in working time.

Certain other items, however, such as a visit to the doctor, a haircut and a movie admission, have gone up in terms of working time.

The Tax Foundation points out how much of man's working day is devoted to earning money to pay his taxes—Federal, state and local. On the average, it finds, taxes take 2 hours and 29 minutes of daily labor. This compares with 1 hour and 39 minutes for food and 1 hour and 25 minutes for housing.

Of the rest of his working day, 37 minutes is used to buy clothing, 42 minutes for transportation, 24 minutes for medical costs, 20 minutes for recreation and 24 minutes for other purposes.

member does not wish to come to the banquet, he may mail his ballot prior to the dinner to be tabulated at the dinner.

The feasibility of a change in the hour of the Chamber of Commerce Board meeting was discussed. The Board decided that the next few meetings would be held at 5:00 P. M. on a trial basis.

It was explained to the Board that our committee accepted the invitation of the City Manager and met with the City Council. At the meeting the Council expressed a desire to talk with a zoning expert, possibly from Michigan State University. The Secretary Manager, through Miss Gladys Knight of Michigan State University, met and talked with Dr. J. H. Richards.

The Doctor is a field service zoning man of Michigan State University. It was proposed by Don Jansen that the Chamber consider the use of a courtesy type card to be mailed to prospective visitors who expressed their intention to visit the Grayling - Crawford County area. It is thought that such a card would help identify guests in the area brought here by the Chamber. The card also would indicate we had a more personal interest in seeing that the area was well received during his stay in Crawford County.

A Carnival weekend progress report was given by Herb Wolff, who again this year with Mrs. Wolff, has accepted the responsibility of running the gym for the Queens Ball.

Hayes reported on the Great Lakes Development Council Industrial meeting at Ann Arbor, where he represented the Crawford County Chamber of Commerce. On the return trip from Ann Arbor he was in conference with Miss Knight of Tourist & Resort Extension Service and Dr. Wolff.

The Chamber Manager is to write a letter to Russell Carlson expressing their appreciation of the good snow removal job done during this past storm.

The snow sculpture reports were made by Frank Bond. He explained that the sites had been staked out, the city had been contacted for snow to be piled on these sites and that six classes would be participating in the year.

MICHIGAN'S NEWSPAPERS PRODUCE RESULTS

Michigan's Newspapers Produce results for the state in ways which are most obvious to the casual observer. Some of these were apparent at the annual convention of the Michigan Press Association held last week at East Lansing.

Weekly newspapers were on the receiving end of a hat tipping from Gov. G. Mennen Williams, who appeared briefly on the program. He urged all newspapers to devote their efforts to informing the public of facts and factors in the crisis in state finances. He added it would be "nice" if his ideas were supported in the press, but more important that newspapers see to it that the public is fully, fairly and impartially informed.

Then he remarked: "The weekly newspapers, everywhere I went (during the last campaign) seemed to be more alert in covering the local political news than I have ever experienced before. They covered Democratic meetings with full stories and frequently with pictures. I'm sure they did the same for Republicans, and this is as it should be. The campaign coverage by many weekly newspapers in 1958 certainly deserves public commendations, and I am glad to give it to them."

Promotion of the state's farm products by Michigan newspapers was accomplished at a gala affair called the "All Michigan Dinner."

Only food produced in Michigan is served, except for coffee. Many agricultural groups cooperate in sending the finest possible samples of their products.

In addition to the meal, each table setting included a supply of what has come to be called "loot." These are samples of products made by art groups and food processors.

Here's the menu for this year's dinner: tomato juice, cole slaw, green beans, baked potatoes, cherry pie with ice cream. Sounds simple, but there are very few states which can boast agriculture activity to match it.

Entrée was called "Billionaire's Beef." This meat already available to the public, was developed by MSU over the years to be exceptionally tender and tasty.

"Loot" included some brand new products. A cherry sauce made and canned in Traverse City shows promise as an improvement over sauces already on the market, especially those served with fowl.

A new powdered drink, orange in color and promoted for breakfast, is entirely produced in Battle Creek. Pre-cooked beans, which if accepted by the housewife, will help sell an important Michigan product, were given as samples.

New cereals, baby food, sausage and crackers were also presented. Excellent samples of familiar products demonstrate clearly that when it comes to apples, mushrooms, potatoes, sugar, honey, skimmed milk, frosting mix, and even baby evergreen trees, Michigan can meet or beat similar products from any state.

The "All Michigan Dinner" is presented with cooperation of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. This year's banquet was the 18th. During the last 18 years, virtually every new food product in this state has taken its place one time or another on the "All Michigan Dinner" table.

Another Michigan newspaper activity which received attention during the publishers' convention is the Industrial Promotion campaign co-sponsored by the state Economic Development and MPA. Walker Cislis, president of Detroit Edison and one of the state's best known businessmen, spoke for the Economic Development Commission. He presented retiring president Robert S. Marshall, publisher of the Ogemaw County Herald in West Branch, a plaque in appreciation of his newspaper's participation in the program.

Similar plaques were mailed to all 318 Michigan newspapers which took part in the campaign. The industrial promotion program consists of 26 quarter page ads to be printed at least two week intervals for a year. To purchase the space used in these messages, an advertiser would have to pay more than a quarter million dollars.

Newspapers were urged to warn their readers of the dangers of continued high government spending by Frank O. Prior, chairman of the board of Standard Oil (Ind.). Mr. Prior said more facts should be dug out and presented to the public about the effect of such spending internationally. He stated that world financiers are losing faith in U. S. currency; that our products are being priced out of the world markets; that higher taxes and wage increases not matched by productivity increases make our economy weaker.

At Least One State Department operates at a profit to the taxpayers of Michigan. Although government units are not designed to do such, it is refreshing to know in all the present financial darkness, the escheats division of the Attorney General's office brings into the treasury much more money than it costs to operate. Other state offices do too, but people might naturally think of tax collectors without even hearing of the escheats operation.

Briefly, escheats staffers are concerned with bringing to the state property abandoned for more than seven years and inheritances where there is no proper heirs.

Two of 14 divisions of his office according to Attorney General Paul L. Adams, bring in 40 times the cost of their administration. The same two divisions bring in 40 times as much revenue as it costs to operate all 40 of the divisions.

In dollars and cents, these two brought in $780,374 last year. Cost of their operation was $12,800. It cost $780,370 to operate the entire Attorney General's office.

These are samples of products made by art groups and food processors.

"Your Partner In Progress"

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Lucky to Have "Noisy Neighbors"

A recent news item about an Air Force base and the townspeople nearby illustrates a point I've made for some time.

Most of the local people had the same complaint—the roar of jets was irritating—so a group of them petitioned the Air Force to move the base.

Then the Air Force invited the petitioners to the base to show them how vital it was to their defense. The people soon decided jet noise was really a welcome sound—and all petitions were dropped.

From where I sit, jumping to conclusions—without knowing all sides of a question—is something people ought to avoid. It would make living together a lot easier. On little things, too—like your preference for tea or coffee and mine for beer. Understanding the other fellow's point of view will make traveling a lot smoother in this "jet" age of ours.

Congress Owes A Debt . . .

A publication of the American Retail Federation reports: "The atmosphere surrounding the Congress is charged with uncertainty over labor law legislation. Lobbyists, bolstered by an increase in the number of their legislative friends' seem uncertain as to how far they should press their advantage. The more cautious labor lobbyists recognize the possibility that the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee findings could act against unions if the entire Taft-Hartley Law is amended. As a minimum, most believe they will get a Kennedy-Ives type labor bill which included basic Taft-Hartley changes wanted by union leaders."

The Kennedy-Ives bill died in the House last session, after it had been passed by the Senate on a "hurry-up" basis and under circumstances, it is safe to say, which made it impossible for most Senators to really value it thoroughly. And the House's negative action resulted from only one reason—the bad things in the bill far outweighed the good. It would not have reached to the real roots of labor abuses and labor monopolies. It would have brought about minor reforms while doing nothing about the major ones that are needed. It could have placed burdens on employers for which there is neither need nor justice.

Washington reports also say that the "hurry-up" tactics will be used again this session—that the bill's proponents will argue that it is necessary to get some legislation on the books in a rush, and that the Kennedy-Ives bill is the answer. That is not the case at all. It's better to wait for a good bill than to accept a bad bill on grounds of expediency. Actually, a bad bill would be worse than no bill at all for it would tell many uninformed people into thinking that all that needs to be done had been done.

Congress owes the American people a sound and comprehensive labor law.

The Price Of A Strike . . .

Robert U. Brown writes in Editor & Publisher: "It has been estimated that the deliverers' strike against New York newspapers cost about $50,000,000—about $25,000,000 in lost newspaper advertising and circulation revenue, $5,000,000 in lost wages to newspaper employees, $10,000,000 in lost retail sales, and another $10,000,000 in lost revenue to other businesses which depend upon newspapers and newspaper advertising."

Despite all this, Mr. Brown goes on, the strikers

Why Didn't They Pick Our Town?

Our home town is the most important place to each of us. It is here that our roots are deep. Many of us were born here and so were our children. We want them to grow up here and to work here. That's why economic and industrial development of our town is so important to us.

That's why we begin to wonder why an industry that takes a look at our town as the possible site for a new plant locates elsewhere. Why do we wonder why we don't make an effort to find out.

If we sought out the reason why our town was rejected, we might learn that we were not suited for the particular industry we wanted to locate here. Conditions beyond our control might not have been suitable. That brings up an important point. Our advantages should be appraised so that we know what industries we can accommodate. Then we should seek out those types to present our case.

But, it's possible that the reason why we were not picked is because of conditions which we can correct. It could be that a neighboring town developed its advantages in greater degree than we did. They may have municipal facilities which we lack. We can correct those things. It would be a big task to change certain conditions if the work were left to a few. If each of us will cooperate in developing our advantages to the highest point, the situation will not be great on anyone.

This brings us to the point of community attitude. This isn't something we put on when a prospective industry inspects our town. It's something that is built up day in and day out. It is, in fact, a manner of living. Our town could have been rejected because industry felt the community attitude is not favorable toward new industry. That includes our attitude toward our town, toward existing industry and toward each other. A friendly attitude, if it is not present, is something that can be built.

Frequently a decision not to locate is based on something which can be corrected rather than something over which we have no control. To make these corrections, there is a need for interest in industrial development and a spirit of cooperation on the part of everyone.

This Ever Happen To You?

Ever have your car break down on the highway in the dead of night, miles from the nearest town or service station?

If you have, the chances are that it was a truck driver who came to your rescue. For up and down this great State of ours, with its miles upon miles of fine roads, the truck driver has rightfully earned a reputation as the gentleman of the highway.

He is a safe driver — he is a courteous driver — and he is a chivalrous driver, the man who brings you everything you eat, wear or use.

He stops when others pass you by.

Winter Sports

Grayling performed the duties of master of ceremonies at the coronation rites at the park on Sunday.

The visiting queens first registered at arrival and the first official event of the Carnival was a luncheon for the Queens held Saturday noon at Shoppenagons Inn. The afternoon was spent in the judging of the Queens and the rehearsal for the evening's presentation. The Banquet and Ball completed the Saturday evening events.

The Queens breakfasted at Wert's Lone Pine Inn and then rode in the parade through Grayling and out to the park. Stunt and clown tobogganing and skiing gave the smaller than usual crowd many a thrill until the colorful coronation ceremonies got underway at 2 p. m.

The 17-year-old Central Michigan College freshman will reign for a year as Michigan's Winter Sports queen.

The tiara, emblematic of her regency, was placed on her head by Fred Bear, internationally known archer and widely-known Grayling resident.

It was a rather unusual setting, too. An ice-throne constructed at the park had a back drop of ice-draped evergreens that set off the gay colors of the winter sports clothing of the queen and her court of 15 girls from throughout Michigan who had competed for the title.

Relinquishing the title Sunday was Marjorie Wolff of Grayling, elected to the Miss Michigan honor a year ago.

The new queen, a resident of Clare and daughter of Mrs. Ruby Jackson, of Clare, was sponsored in the Miss Michigan contest by the Clare Chamber of Commerce.

In presenting the crown to Queen Ann, Fred Bear stated that it was a privilege he esteemed highly in view of the queen's record of achievement. In addition to the crown, he presented her with a bow, and in a jocular mood told her that the harp, the world's first musical instrument, was derived from the bow and he thought it only fitting that the queen should have one of the world's oldest musical instruments.

Eric Post was carnival chairman. Among his assistants were: Mrs. Donald Rookman, Miss Michigan of 1954, Mrs. Roy O. Milnes, Mrs. William Joseph, Mrs. Ella Wilcox, Mrs. Post, Mrs. Blanche McNeil, Mrs. Herbert Wolff, Matt Edson and Robert Hayes.

Her visitors were Mrs. Bert Conter, Mrs. Norman McDannell and daughter Becky, and Mrs. Joe Durga.

Mrs. Paul Feldhauser, Mrs. Emma Knibbs, Mrs. Don Feldhauser and sons visited the former's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark, at Mio Sunday before last. The previous Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Paul Feldhauser, Gary Leslie and Miss Pam Mauren called on the Starks.

WHY DIDN'T THEY PICK OUR TOWN?

When an industry looks at our town then picks another... Why?

Perhaps we lost because of reasons beyond our control: the company's problems of markets, transportation, raw materials, etc.

But perhaps it was because we lack advantages which competing towns have and which we need if we are to attract industry. Usually a town can develop most of the advantages it needs if its citizens work hard enough and work together. Do we?

Perhaps the company felt that the community's attitude isn't favorable for new industry. Attitude of the people toward their present industry, toward their town and toward each other. Community attitude is not merely everybody's business. It is everybody's every day contribution - good or bad.

Join hands with your local industrial development organization and the Michigan Economic Development Department to help your community prosper.

This ad is one of a series published as a public service by this newspaper in cooperation with the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department.

HOME AGENT'S NOTES

Consumers - Startering - Information Cooperating with County Extension Service

The North wind doth blow... snow and probably more of it. Such weather is just right for serving cozy foods like stew, bean soup and macaroni casseroles. Besides the friendliness of these down-to-earth dishes, here is your chance to beat the food budget.

Serving beef stew? And do you usually consider chuck roast the perfect stew meat? Then how about beef and kidney stew? Kidneys are meat... and the price per pound is about half that of chuck roast. So, if chuck costs 50 cents a pound and kidneys cost 25 cents a pound, you can use a pound of kidneys and half a pound of chuck. You'll have enough stew meat for 4 with some left for seconds; and the total cost is 50 cents. How does that price compare with the price of stew meat if you used all chuck? Cost of "all chuck" stew will be about 75 cents. Because, if your family likes meat as well as most families do - you need at least a pound and a half for 4 people.

Does "Stew" mean a "boiled dinner" to you? You could make the "boiled dinner" with beef, tongue, and boil the vegetables in the broth. A pound of tongue gives 4 or 5 servings. You buy a whole tongue for about $1.25 and, besides boiled dinner, there is enough tongue for sandwiches and casseroles.

Bean soup for 4, if you start with dry beans, will cost no more than 15 cents. And if you know your beans, you know that they are a pretty good source of protein. This means you can serve small portions of meat... and still be giving the family the nourishing food they need. What meat with bean soup? Ham, perhaps. Although you may want to choose a picnic shoulder. Picnic shoulder has "almost ham" flavor. The texture of the meat is not so smooth and elegant as that of ham and picnic shoulder has a bit more waste than ham... but the cost per pound is less than that of ham, and for flavoring bean soup, a picnic may be your choice this time.

Macaroni casseroles have the same advantage as does bean soup. Macaroni is a cereal and so it is a pretty good source of protein. That's why macaroni and other cereals are sometimes called "stretchers" for meat. The cereals fill you up, but that isn't all. Cereals are nourishing too... in combination with meat, you can

SPORTS CORNER

Here N' There

Paul (Bear) Bryant, the football coach Alabama University is counting on to put the Tide team back in the national spotlight, has the ninth-best coaching record of any coach at 108 major colleges in the nation. The record doesn't tell the whole story, either. Bryant took over head coaching jobs at Maryland, Kentucky and Texas A & M when football was at its lowest. His record for 13 years: 91-39-4 (.698 per cent). . . . Byron Pool and Louie Kirkpatrick of Carmel, Ill., smashed their own record when they won the 1,000-mile Mississippi River Marathon for outboards from New Orleans to St. Louis. Their time: 29 hours, 23 minutes—fastest any man, boat or motor ever made the trip. The second place finishers were less than three minutes behind. Twenty-eight boats from nine states finished the race and the first who snatched the race record of 44 hours, 19 minutes, set by Pool and Kirkpatrick in last year's race.
